

HEARD NEWS

The Advertiser Bulletins Enthusiastically Received.

An immense crowd gathered in front of the Advertiser office last night to watch election returns as they came in and were posted up where they were visible to all. It was an enthusiastic gathering—for Parker, and as the returns for the various precincts showed in nearly every case Sam Parker to be ahead, the cheering grew louder and louder still and Republicans yelled themselves hoarse. There were a few Democrats in the crowd at the beginning, but as time passed and nearly all the precincts were heard from, and they saw that Prince David Kawananakoa was snowed under, they moved away, some going around to Democratic headquarters to receive the returns from the bulletin board there. A great number of Independents were scattered through the large assembly; they expressed their delight appropriately whenever the figures for Wilcox were close to those for Parker. Between the bulletins announcing the returns various brand-new political jokes, and many rapidly sketched cartoons were posted to the intense delight and amusement of the throng. A pair of coffins were shown—one for David and one for Wilcox. A life-like portrait of Emmeluth with frost in his whiskers and a snow-bank resting lovingly on his shoulders, took like a vaudeville show with those who have no love for the plumbing trust. "Emmeluth's epitaph" was announced. It read as follows: "His trust in the prophets was great, but his profits in the trust were greater." A startling likeness of Lawyer McClanahan dodging the explosion of a Democratic argument took well with the Republicans. At Democratic headquarters things were pretty quiet, except now and then, when three hearty cheers were given for Prince David. Kawananakoa made a little speech in which he said that even if he was snowed under this time he would try again next time. His friends assured him that they would stay by him, even though he was a loser. At Independent headquarters all was dark. Things were exceedingly quiet on the streets, probably on account of the saloons having been closed all day.

Thousands of people who visit California's celebrated pleasure and health resort go there to drink of this purest of waters. We bring Coronado to your door—that is, the pure, sparkling water, that has been bottled as it comes gushing from its fountain head. The oldest Greek physicians had great faith in the curative properties of mineral spring water, and from that period until the present time, they have been sought by invalids.
